THE ABINGDON BANK ROBBERY.

A Daughter-in-Law's Charges and a Fatherin-Law's Counter Charges.

ROBBERY OF MAIL BAGS.

Very short work was made vesterday morning of the vo notorious jail birds, Joe Butts, alias Joe Adams, and Joe Baldwin, alias "Peppermint" Joe. The notice given of them in the HERALD and announcement of er reappearance before Judgo Donohue in Supreme Court, Chambers, on the opening of the court yester-day had the effect of filling the court room. Gentlere not to be seen every day, and then there is a wide spread curiosity to see persons of this description and observe what sort of men they are—the tricelly being very similar in character to that tracting crowds to see a foreign emperor, orince or any high potentate holding himself forth to public ob ne to see what disposition would be made of the shors, and feeling, no doubt, a sort of professional inin their future destiny-were Police Commislendent Walling and other police officials. It will be remembered that after their dismissai upon the charge of being implicated in the their of $40,000 in bonds from King's Sons, bankers, a new writ was obtained by Mr. W. F. Howe, their counsel to prevent, if possible, their extradition to Boston to answer a charge of burglary. The question in issue was the identity of the prisoners. Mr. Howe filed a traverse to the return to the writ and asked Judge Donohue to appoint a referee to take proofs in regard to the matter of identity, which request was at code granted and Mr. William Sinciar appointed as referee. The parties thereupon, followed by a large crowd, repaired to the Supreme Court, General Term, when Assistant District Attorney Leary on behalf of the people and Charles F. McClean on behalf of the Police Commissioners appeared to resist the effort lesing made to secure the discharge of the prisoners. Mr. Howe denied that the prisoners of the prisoners in Hoston; that this was the day preceding that upon which Mr. Furric, cashier of the Abingdon Bank of Beston, was robbed of $5,000; that he, with Mr. Furricr, went before the Grand Jury, and that upon their statement of the facts the Grand Jury found an indiction mean against the prisoners charging them with such robbery. He swore positively that the prisoners were the persons named in the indictment and warrant of estradition, and he produced a certified copy of the indictment, Mr. Howe subjected the witness to a long and searching cross-examination, but the witness was cool, collected and positive, and his testimony remained unshaken. Following the above testimony, which was all the evidence taken, Mr. Howe had a lengthy consultation with the prisoners and at its close announced that they expressed their willinguess to accompany the officers to Boston, feeling satisfied, however, that they could conclusively establish their innocence there of the crime charged against them. Mr. Sinclair said that the identity of the prisoners he regarded as fully proven a ndent Walling and other police officials. It will be mbered that after their dismissal upon the charge

FAMILY UNPLEASANTNESS.

A case coming up yesterday before Judge Donohue, culiar family quarrel, but illustrates the facility with which contradictory affidavits are made. John H. White, but not the late lawyer of this name, died in this city some eighteeu months ago, and his widow, Mrs. Kate G. White, now brings suit against John White, the father of her late husband, for $23,000 claimed to be due her husband at the time of his death by his store, Mr. White denies any such indebtedness, and outs in a counter claim for $48,180. In a bill of perlars accompanying the answer are five charges, ticulars accompanying the answer are five charges, the first being for the board of John H. White from the time he came of age till his marriage, the second for board of his family after marriage, the third for some other expenses, the fourth for other expenses of his family, and the fifth for moneys advanced to his son for personal use. As the bill is somewhat unique in character it is given below in full:

AN ACROBATIC INFANT. Education of the infant muscles and suppleness for acropatic feats does not receive very encouraging impulse since the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has begun to turn its keen watchfuiness in this direction. Officer Lundberg, of this city, applied resterday to Judge Donohue for a writ of habous con pus in the case of Charles Rivers, a boy four years old, who, he alleges, is unlawfully detained at the Bull's Head Hotel by John Leach, with the intention of taking him to Cuba for gymnastic and acrobatic performances in Murray's Greus. The writ was granted returnable forthwith and the boy was soon produced in court. He is a chubby, healthy looking boy, and certainly gives no indications of the bad usage which the efficer states in his petition he receives at the hands of Leach. The case will be fully investigated this morning.

GENERAL SESSIONS-PART I.

Before Recorder Hackett.

A NOVEL CASE OF LARGENY. James Kellner, on the 28th of December last, was employed in Ward's bakery establishment, No. 194 Elizabeth street, and in the course of a conversation with a fellow workman, named Max Hoppe, produced a bottle and invited Hoppe to take a drink, stating that the fluid was whiskey. Hoppe took a draught, and, soon becoming sleepy and unconscious, lay down. On awaking be discovered that his gold watch and $40 had been abstracted from his person. Kellner had dis-appeared and was at once suspected. Strange enough, a Mr. Kellner presented himself the next day at the Fifty-seventh Street Police Court and complained that one Simon Lanigan, in whose company he had been the Fifty-seventh Street Police Court and complained that one Simon Langan, in whose company he had been the the night previous, had stolen his watch and some clothing. An officer arrested Langan, on whose person were ioung the clothing and a pawn ticket for a watch, which, on being exhibited, was identified by Kelliner as his. Meanwhile, Hoppo, who had been drugged, hearing that Kelliner had made a complaint, gave the efficer a minute description of the watch which had been stolen from him, and it tailled exactly with the one which Kelliner claimed as his property. This being the case a complaint was made against Kelliner by Hoppe, who identified the watch by the letters upon it, "F. V. D.," the initials of the gentleman who had presented him with it while in Germany. Kelliner was arrested by Detectives O'Conner and Fields, of the District Attorney's office, and piaced on trial, Assistant District Attorney Lyon prosecuting, when the above facts were developed. A witness named Henry Kiel testined that Keilner's character for honesty was questionable, as he (Keilner) admitted in a conversation that he had stelen the watch, but that it did not do him much good, as it had been stolen from him, in his own eigence Keilner swore that the watch was his own and that the initials upon it were those of his mother. Despite this fact, however, the jury promptly found the prisoner guilty. When asked what he had to say, Kellner parsisted in saying the watch was his and that he intended to keep it. The Recorder, in passing sentence, severely rebuked the prisoner for his nublushing audacity, adding that the prisoner for his nublushing audacity, adding that the larceny which he had committed by the crime of perjury. Under these circumstances he would sentence him for the torm of four years and six mo

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5, 1877. Washington, D. C., April of 1811.
The following cases were argued in the United States

The following cases were argued in the United States Supreme Court yesterday:—

No. 201. Cloff, collector, vs. Mason et al. —Error to the Grouts Court for Massachusetts. —This was an action to recover a succession tax paid under protest. The tax was upon Mason and others, as successors to the estate of the widow of W. P. Mason, and it was calmed that as the property did not vest until her death, which occurred subsequently to October 1, 1870, the date on which the repeal of the succession tax took effect, and that, as the tax had not accrued at that date so as to come within the saving clause of the act of repeal, it was not justly collected. The Court so held, and the decision is assigned as error where it is urged that it was within the saving clause. Assistant Attorney General Smith for the government; George Putnam for defendances in error.

No 202 fate and wife and Whitfield and wife vs. Norton et al. —Appeal from the Circuit Court for the Eastern district of Arkansas.—The questions in this case are whether the debts created by the administrator of an estate to the appellees were lawful valid debts. The Court bolow found them to bo so, but it is here urged that they were wholly unauthorized when contracted, and that the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained were barred by the statute of Johnson for appellees.

contracted, and that the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained were barred by the statute of Johnson for appellers.

Inmitations. Rose & Garland for appellants, Pike & No. 204. Mactay et al. vs. Sands.—Error to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Montana.—The question in this case is one of practice. The action was in tort and the Court held the answer to be sham and irrelevant, because it did not deny the damages alleged, it is here said in such an action a failure to deny the damages alleged does not admit them, and the plaintiffs must prove the damages before they will be allowed to recover. Saunders & Saunders for plaintiff in error, Morrick & Morris for defendant.

No. 203. Hansell et al. vs. Woods.—Appeal from the Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.—This was an action to restrain the infriligement of a patent—for an infringement in the manufacture of knapsacks. The Court below decreed a perpetual injunction, and it is here contended that the decision was erroneous, in that it sustained the patent when it was void for want of novelty. The particular characteristic of the design which it is said has been used is the flexible principle introduced between the frame and the shoulder of the knapsack. This is said to have been in use before the patent. E. B. Smith and J. S. Biair for appellants; Hastings & Strowbridge for appellee.

No. 205. Howell et al. vs. McAden et al.—Error to the Circuit Court of North Caroling.—This was a suit upon bonds of the Western Rairorad Company, the delence being that they were issued is pursuance of a traduction collision of interested parties, and that the stipulation in them that upon laiture to pay the interest the principal should become due and the mortgage might be foreclosed was contrary to the charter of the company and rendered the bond wold. The delence was sustained, and it is bure urged that there was no fraud and that the stipulation was void only as to the matter stipulated and closes not affect the void; W. N. H. Smith her appellees.

No. 206. Fuller vs. Stone et al.—Error to the Circuit Court for the Northern district of Hinnes, This was an action on a promissory note. The error assigned is in respect to the denial of a motion for a new trial, the argument being that the motion should have been granted. It is said in opposition that error is not assignable on such a motion. A. C. Storey for plaining in error; Thomas & Enadley for delendants.

BRIDGET'S VICTORY.

HOW AN AGED COUPLE CARRIED ON RIVAL PEA-NUT STANDS-THEIR ENCOUNTER AND ITS

the lowly" were developed in the Court of Special Sessions, yesterday, in the case of John Sullivan, charged by his wife, Bridget, with assault and battery. John is aged seventy-seven years, Bridget sixty-live. Their married life has not, as a rule, been one of joy, as on several occasions previously they were obliged to resort to a police court for the adjustment of their difficulties. This want of domestic harmony had the effect of producing between the two a spirit of bitter rivairy. Waen, therefore, Bridget opened a modest peanut stand in front of the Olympic Theatre John hastened to open a rival establishment in front of the Theatre Comique. Soon Bridget added molasses candy to her stock. John rushed to the candy store and was speedily gloating in having also started a molasses candy trade John lost no time in clearing away a corresponding corner for oranges. To what lengths this rivairy corner for oranges. To what lengths this rivary wond have been carried, had not a little domestic scene intervened, no one can toil. Each was determined to outdo the other.

When Bridget took the stand yesterday she presented a wee-begone appearance; eyes swoilen, face discolored and arms scratched. Her aged husband stood leaning on the prisoner's rail, acutely listening to every word of the testimony, and francically endeavoring to attract the Judge's eye by a vigorous shasing of the head whenever a bid point against him was made by the witness. Bridget took her sory in a mild, piantive way, gracefully smiting on the judges in turn and occasionally throwing in, by way of effect, an old "your reverance."

She stated that on the 6th of March John came home under the influence of liquor, She was quietly sleeping in bed. He awakened her rudely, and, brandishing a poker, commenced dancing an Indian war dance. She middly remonstrated, which had the effect of infuriancy him, had be rushed a ther with the poker. Then he pulled her out of bed and pummelled her, when she called the poince and had him arrested. He had beaten her so budly that she had to go to Bellevne Hospinal.

John took the witness stand and corroborated Bridget's vne Hospital.

John took the witness stand and corroborated Bridget's John took the witness stand and corroborated Bridget's testimony in almost every particular, excepting that he substituted her name for his. It was he who was lying quietly in bed whon Bridget came in under the indicance of liquar; it was she who advanced with the poker and danced the lidian war dance; he it was who middly remoustrated by puthing her away. The first push sent her between two chairs, which blackned her cyes; the second landed her in a tab, which bruised her body. He did not do it.

The Court thought Bridget has received the worst of the occounter, and to equalize matters sentenced John to three months in the l'entientary.

GETTING A SQUARE MEAL.

A young man scated himself at the lanch counter of the Astor House yesterday and ate heartily for half an hour. Then he took the check, which called for ninety cents, and, putting it in his pocked coolly sauntered out; but unfortunately for his plans one of the employes was watching him. An officer was called and the young man taken into custody. At the Tombs Court he gave the name of Samson. He was committed for trial in the Court of Special Sessions.

SEEN IN TIME.

Churles Wilson, a youth of twenty-one years, was arrangued at the Tombs Police Court yesterday, charged with attempted burglary on the premises of Marcus M. Marks, No. 9 Lispenard street. The prisoner was seen attempting to force an entrance in the rear passage. The store contained a large and valuable stock of clothing. He was also detected in endeavoring to enter the premises No. 18 Lispeaard street. The prisoner was committed in default of bail.
